

My dad thinks I am still a Kaccha Dhaaga

By : INVC Team Published On : 21 Aug, 2018 12:00 PM IST

INVC NEWS

Mumbai , Varun Dhawan plays the character of lovable Mauji in the much anticipated Sui Dhaaga. He has trained rigorously in the intricate processes of cutting  and stitching fabrics for his role and Varun wanted to surprise his father with his skills. Which is why, he decided to give his father David Dhawan a very special birthday present. Varun has sewn a shirt for his father's birthday and gifted it to him which made David thrilled! Choosing a colorful, summery fabric, Varun decided to put his sewing skills to test. "I am not quite as good as trained tailors, but I have picked up some tailoring while making Sui Dhaaga. My dad thinks I am still a Kaccha Dhaaga (raw and young), but this will prove to him that I am not so raw anymore!" A loving and dedicated son, Varun took out time and effort to make this special shirt for his father and give him a pleasant surprise. To make David's birthday even more special, Varun and his elder brother Rohit, also gifted their parents a customized staycation at a posh 5-star hotel in Mumbai. The brothers ensured that David had the best time. They also hosted a private dinner for David and Karuna and celebrated with their immediate family.

URL : <https://www.internationalnewsandviews.com/my-dad-thinks-i-am-still-a-kaccha-dhaaga/>
