New Delhi,

The COVID-19 pandemic has affected educational systems worldwide, leading to the near-total closures of schools, universities and colleges. Indian Students who were planning to study abroad after their schooling was confused when the pandemic hit the world. In almost every country the coronavirus has impacted higher education plans. According to the report, while higher education institutions might adapt sooner or later to the e-learning practices, it might take a relatively long time to come to terms with the drastic changes in student mobility for higher education.

When it comes to MBBS, China has better medical education infrastructure and facilities with affordable fees when compared to other foreign countries. Most Indian students prefer china for Medical Education but due to Covid-19, students prefer the UK instead of China. Yes, the UK will be the next pivot country for Medical Education after china. Medical education in the United Kingdom includes educational activities involved in the education and training of medical doctors in the United Kingdom, from entry-level training through to continuing education of qualified specialists. A typical outline of the medical education pathway is presented there. However, training schemes vary and different pathways may be available. Entry requirements typically range from five GCSEs at grades A* or A, including English and maths, and at least a grade B in Science. You also need a minimum of three A levels at grades AAA or AAB in chemistry and either biology, physics or maths, plus another academic subject. English language tests are also mandatory for most universities.

Gopalan Anish Acharya, Founder of Medveda Pvt Ltd said, "One of the most important considerations while choosing a foreign university is the job potential upon completion. The UK colleges and universities score highly on this parameter. Studying in the UK is the most transformational and life-changing experience for anyone but now in post-Covid-19, things are getting changed for good and now universities are again starting their admissions. Also if we will see this economically, many universities in the UK, US, and Australia are offering admissions and new courses in their universities. The UK is a welcoming place where international students can immerse themselves in an exciting life. Education plays a vital role in the shaping of your life through planning can help you with studying at your dream university in the UK. The education sector will now be more technology-driven blended with the audiovisual classes. The cost of living will be a bit higher now as compared to earlier times. The regular social distancing and sanitization norms will be followed everywhere."
